TAKE IT IN TIME

Just as Scores of Norway People Have.

Many people in this locality recommend them.

Here's one case: John C. Ripley, the well-known blacksmith, Oxford St., South Paris, says: "I was quite miserable for several months with an attack of kidney trouble. I had pains through the small of my back and my kidneys didn't act regularly. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me in a remarkably short time."

OVER TWO YEARS LATER, Mr. Ripley said: "I have had little occasion to worry about my kidneys since I used Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Ripley had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. 19-20

Public Utilities.

Government ownership of public utilities never promotes private enterprise; on the contrary it is a hindrance. Every community is solicitous that capital shall be attracted to it and find investment in enterprises that will benefit the people who live there.

Here is a sample of the difference in development by public and by private undertakings. There are 614,671 telephones in New York more than there are in London, Berlin, Paris and Petrograd combined. The foreign phone systems are operated by the government and the service is far inferior to that in the United States.

Why does the young man with red hair insist on wearing a green hat? And speaking of conundrums why does the young woman who wears No. 7 shoes want them white with black trimmings?

WHY I WOULD NOT ENLIST.

Will I enlist? Not on your life! The boys of '61 were not so stupid. They were prompt to quell Secession's strife, But when the war was done, The "fools" who saved the Union for The "fools" who stayed at home, Were thought of by the "solid men" As merely drags and loam.

Which in the Nation's social "beer" Forever must be found, And thus the only heroes were The ones left underground.

I have my health and strength, thank God, And I intend to keep them. I don't want to go to the front, Nor beg a pension smile, I'll still support my family, Above the fallen hero's mound, Nor beg a pension smile.

To give their manhood's best Young strength and energy and lives, And "bawl" about for volunteers, Even then I won't enlist.

For I would not exchange my health, I would not lose a limb, For all the Nation's boasted wealth, For all the Nation's boasted might, To hate to swell the pension list, To dread the pauper's life, I would not be a pensionist.

Made so by scorn and hate, And epithets, such as we read To the soldiers in the press of his day, Anent our present pensioners, Their counterfeited distress, Their wantonness and selfishness, The e'er-increasing cost They are unto the Government That but for them were lost.

I may not be a patriot— I don't aspire to be— There's men enough to shed their blood Without expecting me.

To lose the only chance I have Of keeping all bills paid, The Republic's credit is not Substantial, I'm afraid.

And so I'll keep away from war, I'll beg no pension smile, I will bid adieu to glory and All pensionable pretenses.

—G. M. W. Greenleaf.

A DINNER WITH THE G. A. R.

To be a guest, invited, A. T. that were sweet, Where comradeship and hospitality both meet To hear again the soldier, scarred and gray, The story tell of comrades of his day, To walk with him in contemplation led, These honor guards the living and the dead, It brings a joy it also gives a pain To think how much they suffered for our gain.

We of the present day can never know The pain and suffering keen; the want and woe These have endured who still are with us yet. Oh, may this Nation careful be, "lest she forget," And they, the generations yet to be, exclaim: "The war our ancestors waged, a war in name."

Keep out the statues from the storied hall, Of those who fought and prayed for Freedom's fall. I look into the faces of these men, I travel back to other years, and then I see a Nation proud and free, And Freedom struggling for her very life! Note the call to arms, the volunteers, The quickly forming corps, the hopes, the fears.

The hurrying in by land and hollow sea, On to the battle-front, the Order of the Day, There is no record made where many sleep, Don't ever dream that victory was cheap, In many a fray they fell as thick as blades of grass.

When Death the Reaper made his lightning pass! Place not their names beside the names of those Who reeked these unto this day their foes, Do not forgive too much a rebel race, Lest they'll overrun, at last, usurp your place. Let us retain for our country's pride, Nor e'er forget at what cost our heroes died, There is a certain status we must keep— Lest this our proud position and our dignity, Become a bagatelle on land and sea— Plays the fool of a whole continent.

My Nation is my pride, her honor mine, I love her with a love almost divine, I stand and proud to own what I can, "The soldier's cause as mine; I am an American."

Then perish every base and ignoble thought That betrays aught in truth for what they fought, For the widow's tears; the orphan's cry; the veils, And always will, a wound that never heals. —Dana Harlowe.

The Camp Fire.

Again beside the camp-fire's blaze, With comrades tried and true, O, sing the songs of early days, And cheer the "Boys in Blue."

You're marching to the sunset shore, And soon will reach the strand To join loved comrades who have died, Safe in that summer land.

Where strife and war have passed away In shining ranks above, United are the "Blue and Gray," Their banners peace and love.

Does It Run On Kerosene?

THE most important feature of a farm power engine today is the fuel it uses.

That, more than anything else, determines its usefulness and economy.

At present prices of gasoline and kerosene, you could not afford to accept a gasoline engine as a gift, if you had to use it.

You could better afford to pay a big premium for a Mogul kerosene engine.

See the Mogul work on kerosene. Ask your dealer to show you the difference in fuel cost between a Mogul in any size from 1 to 50-H. P., and a gasoline engine of the same size. The figures will surprise you.

To-day is always the best day to deem up?

The U. S. Public Health Service has reduced typhoid fever 80 per cent in some communities!

Polluted drinking water causes many deaths?

Bad teeth handicap children?

Insufficient sleep endangers health?

Member the faker who used to travel up and down the country fixing kerosene lamps so they wouldn't explode? Subsequent investigation usually proved that his ingredients were a little not too coarse rock salt and a small piece of red flannel. He disappeared a generation or so ago, but one of his direct descendants has just perfected a substitute for gasoline as a fuel for internal combustion engines, his ingredients being water and a mysterious blue powder. There's probably not been such an appeal for suckers since Rev. Mr. Jemegan developed his scheme for extracting gold from seawater.

The cottagers are arriving already at Lovewell's Pond.

Our state road will soon be ruined if the speeding which is forbidden is allowed. The signs regulating the speed limit do not seem to have any more weight than those forbidding riding wheels on the sidewalks. After the law is enforced once or twice they will be more careful. We cannot find fault with tourists when our town people are breaking the rules.

HINTS FOR STOUT WOMEN.

Never wear shiny stuffs, such as satin. They catch the light on the curves of your figure and make you look much stouter than you really are. Soft dull stuffs are the right things for you.

Never wear a blouse of one stuff and the skirt of another, but always have whole dresses or costumes. A contrasting vest, collar or front on a dark dress is quite allowable.

Wear stripes or plain stuffs rather than checks or flowered patterns. Don't have a contrasting belt. It cuts you in two, and by taking away from your height increases your apparent width.

Wear low collars. High ones are very unbecoming to a thick throat, and, besides, you are nearly sure to have a pretty neck—most stout people have—so you may as well show it.

Let your indoor skirts touch close fitting on the hips, with a good flare-out of the foot. A skirt which draws in round the feet always increases the apparent size of the hips.

Don't wear gray, pale pink, pale blue or pale violet. White and cream, if they are dull, sometimes help to make the figure seem slim, but pale pastel shades are always very broadening. Your best colors are black, mole and the darker shades of blue, brown, green, red or purple, according to your complexion.

THE AVERAGE USEFULNESS.

A homeless and hungry man who applied for relief said that he could speak 10 languages and complained that a college education had not done him much good.

An education such as this gives a man the advantage of being able to ask for a meal at almost any household in this broad land, but is this real education?

It is the rule rather than the exception that the high grade college men are outstripped by the self-schooled Lincolns.

Some eminently successful business men have declared that their experience has taught them to beware of applicants from the classical colleges and even from the high schools of today.

Higher learning and cultivation of the esthetic are good. They are essential to the happiness and usefulness of the individual, as they are to the progress and development of the race.

But these must be the superstructure, not the foundation.

The first things that make the nation are not the learned scholar, the famous artists, the magic musician, but the practical farmer, the skilled artisan, the successful merchant.

The nation's true greatness is not in its libraries, its halls of art, its temples of music, but in its productive farms, its busy factories and the marts of trade.

Our sweetest national song is the rhythmic hum of industry. Our highest glory is in the happy homes of a prosperous people.

One may speak 10 languages, and only beg for food. Another may speak but one, and that imperfectly, and yet give to the world a wondrous message.

"Would you consider me presumptuous if I asked you for a kiss?" inquired the new arrival in the hospital.

"That depends," replied the nurse. "Have you fallen in love with me?"

"Can't say that I have in this short time. But I've never had a sterilized kiss."

AXIOMS OF AN OCTOGENARIAN WORKER.

Hard work is the best thing ever invented to keep a man young.

That talk about men being too old to work at 60 is all fiddlesticks.

Maybe the present school system of discipline is to blame for so many men being out of work. A good sound thrashing once in a while is the best thing that can happen to a growing boy.

I wouldn't advise any ambitious young man to enter the postal service. If he does, it will unfit him for any other kind of work.

Money isn't always a sign of success, although most people of today consider it so.

Any man who works hard all his life and enjoys good health up to the time he is my age, can consider himself successful.

Always looking for new and better ways of doing your work will pay in the long run.

Pound Cake of Course.
A man went to order a wedding cake the other day.

"I'm getting married," he said, "and I want a cake."

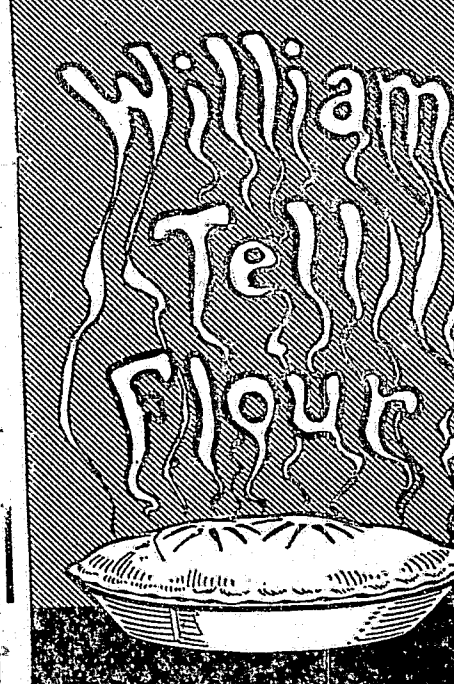

"Well, it's the latest thing," said the shop girl, "to have wedding cakes in harmony with the bridegroom's calling or profession. Thus a journalist has a spice cake, a musician an oat cake, an athlete a cup cake, a man who loses on his friends a sponge cake, and so forth and so on. What is your calling, please?"

"I am a pianist."

"Then, of course," said the girl, "you'll want a pound cake."

AN ABLE LECTURER SAYS

"The hope of civilization is the trained, educated, emancipated American woman."

He further stated, "The American woman has a position of command which her sisters of Europe have not attained. On the other side are old maids of both sexes who would confine her activities to cooking, sewing and child-bearing while the women here have accumulated large knowledge of affairs and will communicate it to future generations of men, with higher ideals of civilization. She is already bringing about a different model of masculine hero, different from the old, 'protecting, warring male.' Her hero is not the hero of fiction who will die for her, but a new man who will live and struggle with her."

"This is no cheap hero. Why, American women have already made their mark on the public men of the United States."

"Government by man alone is bachelor housekeeping marked by waste and extravagance. The Government is housekeeping on a large scale. Tell a woman that the shells discharged in a single day in the assault on Verdun would keep Columbia College running two years, and watch her housewifely thrift awaken and blaze at such wicked waste."

WHALE OF A WALLPAPER

The Rev. A. J. Waldron, the popular English clergyman, has a fine "eye" for the humorous. One of the best stories that he tells is the following:

"A very demure-looking Salvation Army lassie, who was traveling in a railway train was asked by a man sitting next her whether she believed every word in the Bible."

"Yes," she replied, "I do."

"Surely," exclaimed the man, "you don't believe that Jonah was swallowed by a whale?"

"I do," she answered, "and when I get to heaven I'll ask him about it."

"But suppose he's not in heaven?" inquired the stranger, with a sneer.

"Then you ask him!" was the Salvation Army girl's reply.

Two Oxford men will long remember the kindly treatment accorded them by the Shakers of Sabbath Day Lake the other night, when they were the victims of an accident. They were passing through Poland with an automobile loaded with goods, and in turning out for a team, went into the ditch and the auto was overturned, pinning both underneath. They were rescued by the Shakers, taken into their homes, where their injuries were treated, and taken care of for the night, proceeding in the patched up machine the morning, grateful but refusing to give their names.

CHOICE DISHES FROM ORANGES.

Orange Bread—Dissolve one-fourth yeast cake in one-half cup water, one well-beaten egg, one tablespoon melted butter, one tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, grated rind of 2 oranges, three-fourths cup orange juice; beat thoroughly; add three cups flour; beat again; turn on well floured board and knead till elastic; cover and rise over night; in morning shape in hot oven. This is delicious for sandwiches also eaten with unsalted butter. This recipe makes one loaf, which will, if cut thin, make two dozen sandwiches.

Orange Cookies—One-fourth cup of butter, three-fourths cup sugar, one egg beaten together; add one-fourth cup orange juice, three cups flour, with two tablespoons baking powder sifted in. When well mixed add grated yellow rind of orange. Roll them and bake in moderate oven. Cut them in the shape desired. It is well to reserve the last cup of flour to use in rolling out as they do not need to be too stiff. Delicious and keep well.

Scotch Marmalade—To make this requires one good-sized, juicy orange, one lemon and one grapefruit. Wash the fruit so that the peel is thoroughly clean. Then cut the peel and extract the juice, discarding the seeds. Discard all the tough fibrous parts and chop the fruit, peel and all.

Measure the juice and ground material adding two cups of water for every cup of material and juice. Stand away 24 hours in a covered bowl for 12 to 24 hours. After this boil it 30 minutes and let stand for another 12 to 24 hours. Again boil it 30 minutes and add sugar, pint for pound and boil until it will jelly. Pour into tumblers and cool.

Orange Short Cakes—Peel and divide one dozen oranges, remove the tough white bits; cut each section in three or four pieces; put in a dish a layer of oranges then one of sugar until all the oranges and a coffee cup of sugar are used; let it stand two hours or more.

To one quart of sifted pastry flour add one teaspoonful salt, three heaping teaspoons baking powder and two teaspoons soda and rub into flour two tablespoons butter and the same of cottolene; mix with a pint cold milk or milk and water, roll almost as thin as pie crust; cut out with a large wheel at least four inches in diameter; spread half of oranges with melted butter and place on top of them a second layer; dot these with bits of butter; place in a greased tin and bake in a hot oven 20 minutes or until brown; separate without cutting; crush the oranges that are in a greased tin and mix with modern potato masher, pour some of the juice over each cake, stir the remainder of the oranges into sweetened whipped cream and pile on top; sent to table on large platter.

Orange Cocktail—One orange cut in quite small pieces (one-fourth cup), beat fourth cup sugar, two tablespoons of grape juice. Let it stand one hour. Serve in glasses with cherries on top. Increase according to number to be served. This is for one glass.

Marmalade—Three naval oranges, one lemon, sliced very fine, 11 tumblers of water. Soak 24 hours, then boil one hour. Stand another 24 hours, add two quarts of sugar, boil one hour. Makes 11 tumblers.

Roly-Poly—Roll in an oblong sheet, a light paste, made as for apple dumplings and lay oranges, peeled, sliced and seeded, thickly all over it. Sprinkle with white sugar; scatter one teaspoonful of butter on top; scatter one teaspoonful of white sugar; scatter one teaspoonful of butter on top; scatter one teaspoonful of white sugar; scatter one teaspoonful of butter on top.

Roll up the sheet, folding down the end to secure the syrup. Boil one and one-half hours in a pudding cloth. Eat with a lemon sauce. Sweet oranges are preferred.

Orange Cake—Two cups of sugar, one-half cup of water, yolks of five eggs, whites of three (beaten), pinch salt, juice and rind of one orange, two cups of flour, one teaspoonful baking powder, beaten white added last. Bake in layers.

Icing—Beaten whites of two eggs, and one cup powdered sugar, juice and rind of one orange; beat it until stiff. Put some between the layers, pour the other over the cake.

Orange Cakes—Make a number of cup cakes; then cut oranges in small pieces, lay them on the cakes and surround them with whipped cream.

Orange Mint Salad—Four oranges, one tablespoon sherry, two tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice two tablespoons finely chopped mint; peel oranges and divide into small pieces, removing connecting fiber and skin; add sugar and sherry (grape juice may be used instead of sherry if preferred); let stand for one hour in a cool place to marinate; just before serving sprinkle in the chopped mint; add the lemon juice; serve in small sherbet glasses.

Orange Jelly With Banana Cream—Cover one ounce of gelatin with one-half cup of cold water, and add the grated rind of one cold orange. When soft, stir in one cup of boiling water and one cup of sugar. Add two cups of orange juice and strain through cheese cloth, then turn into a border mold. Press two bananas through sieve and add one tablespoon lemon juice and three tablespoons powdered sugar; beat with a silver fork until very light and add one egg of cream whipped stiff. Turn over the jelly from the mold and fill the center with banana cream.

FOUR-FOLD BENEFIT

From Two Grand Medicines in Spring Hood's Sarsaparilla Peptiron Pills.

You know that physicians often give two prescriptions, perhaps more, for medicines to be taken together, or alternately or at different times, because desired results cannot be secured by one medicine alone.

The most successful combination spring medicine treatment that we know of—because perfectly "compatible" and productive of the best results—is in Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron Pills. The former thoroughly searches out and expels impurities from the blood, creates an appetite and promotes digestion and natural action of the kidneys and liver, while Peptiron Pills give the powerful tonic they literally "put iron into your blood"—that just balances the requirement of perfect health.

Hood's Sarsaparilla should be taken before meals and Peptiron Pills after meals—patients taking them so report the benefit is four-fold—prompt, active and permanent.

A Regular Flirt.
That Waterford has many true lovers of the drama was demonstrated last week by a fine attendance and intense enjoyment of the entire three acts of the play "A Regular Flirt" of which only a program and a dramatic personal were given last week in the Advertiser.
To say that any one character of the play was acted better than another, might be invidious, but of certain scenes in which the spirit of flirtation was illustrated by some of the best pieces of acting ever seen on this stage, was the scene in which the young lady, who sustained the part of the flirt, (Miss Graham), endeavored by persistent, over persuasion to win the affection of Dr. Morgan (Glenn McIntire) were grand. The acting of Dr. Morgan in resisting the enticements of the fair siren was equally good and irresistibly funny. Other scenes in which the Morgan nephews, Libby and Knight, held the audience for a few breathless moments in participation of cross purposes with the versatile Dick Harding (Urban Canwell) and the self possessed, shrewd, elegant mannered Kitty, Dick's sister, (Agnes Jordan). All equally capable and efficient, including Marie, the French maid, of mixed linguistic abilities, proved their claim to consideration and admiration as the peers of any and all who have been honored with appreciative audiences in the past.

The Academy orchestra, with several talented new players since its last appearance here, rendered a number of very pleasing selections under the guidance of Mrs. Sadie Scribner's baton. The members of the orchestra are:
First violin.....Alvin Truelove
Second violin.....William Pembroke
First violin.....Phyllis Brown
Second violin.....Winifred Hubbard
Violoncello.....Joseph Libby
Viola.....Wesley Evans
Pianist.....Marcia Robbins
Miss Robbins played a brilliant solo to the immense delight of her audience.

A Busy Man.
W. K. Hamlin attended the Farmers' meeting at Harrison Grange hall last week. Mr. Hamlin though having a number of important business interests, is yet a farmer.

He was born and raised on a farm, which he owns and cultivates at the present time, and it is being rendered more valuable each year by the improvements being constantly made by its owner. Three thousand seedling white pine trees from a Connecticut nursery have recently been planted on the Hamlin homestead farm, which is at the end of Mountain Avenue, one of the most elevated farm locations in the town.

To Mr. Hamlin is due the honor of originator and principal promoter of the scheme for the organization of the Waterford and Norway Cow-testing Association, which honor is shared by the village and Bear Mountain Grange hall, where the organization was born.

Mr. Hamlin is one of the four or five charter members of Bear Mountain Grange living and for many years has proved his unswerving fealty of his obligations of constant attendance at its regular meetings and by willingly bearing the responsibilities of its official stations.

He is not content with being the leader or overseer of his many sided business interests, but is an expert manual laborer in every department of work associated with overalls or leather apron. His hours of activity are from daylight to after dark or any old time short of midnight.

He is by mechanical training, skilled as a workman in the use of machinery, especially for woodworking, of which he has many kinds for various uses. The Waterford Creamery, owned and managed by Mr. Hamlin, is well known as an institution of many years standing and is operated by the most advanced principles of Dairy Science. It has been practically under the personal management of one mind for 25 years and that of the highest degree of intelligence.

INTENSIVE LIVING.

Japan can teach America how to live on the soil. Over here we glily use the term "intensive farming," but over there in the Sunrise Empire they actually do the thing. Each square mile in the Mikado's realm that is under cultivation furnishes food for 2,300 people and at that rate it is a matter of simple arithmetic to discover that the arable land of any of our great American agricultural States would be able to support more people than are now living in the entire country.

The Oriental does not require a ten-acre lot for a kitchen garden. He is able to support his family on a bit of land to support his family would blithely give that an American would plantain or golden rod. The Jap or Chinaman plows deep, fertilizes heavily, and gets three crops a year because he has but little and makes the most of it. A useful trick, that of the Jap! One who learns it may get much more from the soil or from life. Intensive methods pay dividends in other spheres than that of farming.

It is not widespread diversity but concentrated effort that counts. Most of us could raise some kind of a prize crop if we would till well our single acre. The trouble is that we make a try at the whole farm. Think of that, young man! Are you spreading out your endeavors wide and thin or are you doing with your whole might the particular thing that your hands find to do?

Rigid limitation of effort is harder and wiser than appears at first glance. Good people sometimes think themselves responsible for every form of helpful activity practiced among mankind. The mistake is natural and people of earnest minds are most likely to fall into it, but never a bit of work, which having done, he should be well satisfied. To do one thing well, or at most two or three, is about the limit for most humans.

Happiness, too, waits on intensive methods. It is less the range than the vigor of our enjoyment that counts. The happy man is the one who has learned to get joy out of his daily occupation and common experiences. He will find more true happiness in a ride on the cars than his neighbors can get out of a six-cylinder car.

Do you think that we must have a lot of time and money in order to live? Are we waiting for the "good time coming," when we shall enjoy ourselves and the fruits of our labors? At the present moment we are living as truly as we ever shall live and we are in the possession of enjoyment—barring those "rainy days" that come into all lives at times—just as completely as we shall ever be possessed of it. If we are ever to be contented it must be now. Emerson says: "Write it on your heart that every day is the best day in the year. No man has learned anything rightly until he knows that every day is Doomsday."

To fill each day with honest work, clean fun and a spirit of serene courage, taking the simple joys as they come, is to make life worth living whether the financial results be a million dollars or just enough to live on.

TOWN BEAUTIFUL MOVEMENT.

The real estate promoter is a necessary element in town development. His faith in the town and enterprise as an investor makes a place grow. He takes chances with his funds, and his advertising pushes a town along. But his laying out of new tracts of land is not always conclusive to town beauty.

There has been a great tendency to cut up land into too small houselots. Outlying tracts may be worth but a small fraction of a cent per square foot. There is plenty of room for lawn and garden for each house. But the dealer may think that one 60-foot lot would not bring nearly as much money as two of thirty foot frontage each.

Real estate auctions, with gift features, balloons, band concerts, etc., have been a feature of development in many places. If they induce people to buy tiny little lots to be covered later with insignificant little congested dwellings, they do not promote the Town Beautiful Movement.

Thickly placed houses on little lots give an impression of poverty. The people are too close to each other. There is no elbow room. Children, dogs and hens roam at will in a thickly settled district. It becomes impossible to develop flowers or shrubbery. If grass is planted, the hurrying feet of children, seeking in vain for a real playground, soon wear it out.

The cutting up of real estate is a difficult matter to control by law. If it could be well regulated, it would be a blessing, but public sentiment is hostile to much interference with private property.

People should exercise more sense in choice of homes. Let them insist on decent sized house lots. A hundred or two added to cost of land, followed by planting of grass and shrubs and trees, will add many times the additional cost to the value of property. —Sanford Tribune.

LOOKING BACK.

It seems scarcely more than yesterday that we turned Cuba back to Cubans with considerable anxiety as to their ability to run their own affairs. It is particularly interesting to reflect now, however, upon what Spain allowed to slip through its fingers because it failed to treat decently an intelligent, capable people. For Cuba today has proved a wonderfully apt pupil, an assimilator of the lessons we laid out for it during American occupation. Visitors to the island this winter who have returned to their homes tell us they were impressed with the cleanliness and the sanitary regulations of the island republic. They found an absence of flies and mosquitoes, particularly flies in the great and fly-tenting sugar and syrup manufacturing, and without the need of screens to keep them away. The hotels were marvels of cleanliness, the sidewalks and streets scrupulously neat. What a difference from the Cuba of a few years back!

Before 1898 Cuba was a place of pestilence, Havana a yellow fever hole and a good place to stay away from. Today it is a semi-tropical resort that is clean and sweet-smelling, a world resort, in fact, for tourists.

The great change was brought about, by whom? It is history that Cuba's regeneration, in every line, dated from the day of the American occupation in the Spanish-American War. One of the first things that America did in Cuba when the Spanish departed was to have a clean up week. Army engineers and sanitary experts arrived.

That Cuba, free and running her own affairs under only the benevolent protection of the country that struck the shackles from her, is able, 18 years later, to prove to travelers that the American lessons of 1898 continue to be fruitful, is something that Americans may have a pride in as well as the Cubans.

About sixty children took part in the performance which represented a modern society wedding, and the original Tom Thumb and bride could not have been received with greater eclat. The children were drilled for the occasion by Bessie Jones of Topeka, Kansas, who also furnished the captivating costumes which lent such a charm to the little ones, none over ten, playing at being grown-ups.

When "U" is "V."
Why do modern architects assume that U is V, and carve in stone that palpable and bold absurdity?

Now that we possess the U with soft and graceful curve, of v-necked doily and willingness to serve, why do they carve United States and public school and such, and make the English language look as funny as the Dutch, with resplendent and brilliant car and university and other marks of education pervasively?

That V impresses some of us as cheap and gaudy bliff, which parvenues may pill in place of more substantial stuff, but people who are fashioned out of vanity and pretentiousness that view all such affection with an unmeasured disgust. Such exhibitions always make me very givm and bliv, don't they have the same effect on you?—Printer's Ink.

E. C. PLUMMER IS ENDORSED

County Committee Passes Resolution in Support of Him for Congress

CAN MEET OPPONENT ON HIS OWN GROUND

The Republican County Committee held a meeting recently at the Colonial Cafe, Chairman A. F. Williams of Phillipsburg, presiding. The coming primary election was discussed and enthusiastic reports were presented in regard to the outlook for an old time Republican victory in the State, and Presidential elections.

The following letter from Rep. William S. Green, of the 15th Mass. Dist. to Hon. E. W. Hyde of this city was read:

House of Representatives, U. S., Washington, March 29, 1916.

Hon. Edward W. Hyde, Bath, Maine.

My Dear Mr. Hyde:

I was very glad to learn from Senator Smith of the enthusiastic convention which Maine Republicans recently held in Portland, and of the opportunity there now is to redeem the district of my old friend, Nelson Dingley.

Especially fortunate are your people at this time in having as one of the candidates for Congress in this district Col. E. C. Plummer.

For sixteen years, during a part of which time I was chairman of the Committee on Merchant Marine, I have known Mr. Plummer; and the high esteem in which he has come to be held by members, to say nothing of his special knowledge of shipping matters so generally recognized, enables me to say that he will secure a position of influence as soon as he takes his seat in the House, and will place your district in a strong position there.

Congratulating you upon having such a candidate available at this time when shipping matters are coming to the front, and with pleasant recollections of the hospitality which you extended while I was visiting Bath, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
(signed) Wm. S. Greene.

CONVERSATION OF TWO MOTHER FLIES.

Two mother flies awoke from their winter sleep in an old tin can and wiped their eyes with their slimy feelers, then, feeling the benevolent rays of the sun penetrating to their winter quarters, crawled out to see what the world had to offer.

"Wasn't it great for that man to leave that old tin can there for us to sleep in during the winter?" asked one.

"If he had been mean like his neighbor I'm sure that I would have died last winter. Now I can raise my family in peace."

"Quite right," chimed in the other mother fly, "and that would have meant that at least ten billion flies would never have been born to buzz this year. But leave it to me, where shall we go first?"

"I forgot about that. But don't you think we'd better make a trip to the sewer before seeing the baby?"

"To be sure, my dear, but we can't go there, and after we have filled up, we can take a trip to the baby for our thirst. And maybe the house fly has some pies or jam that we can travel over after we get back from the sewer, and you know I haven't had a single sweet thing all winter."

"Just as you say. But let's hurry or those naughty fly swatters may get us before we start."

So saying, they departed. They are arriving. What reception are you going to give them this year, Mrs. Housewife?

BUILDING SIDEWALKS

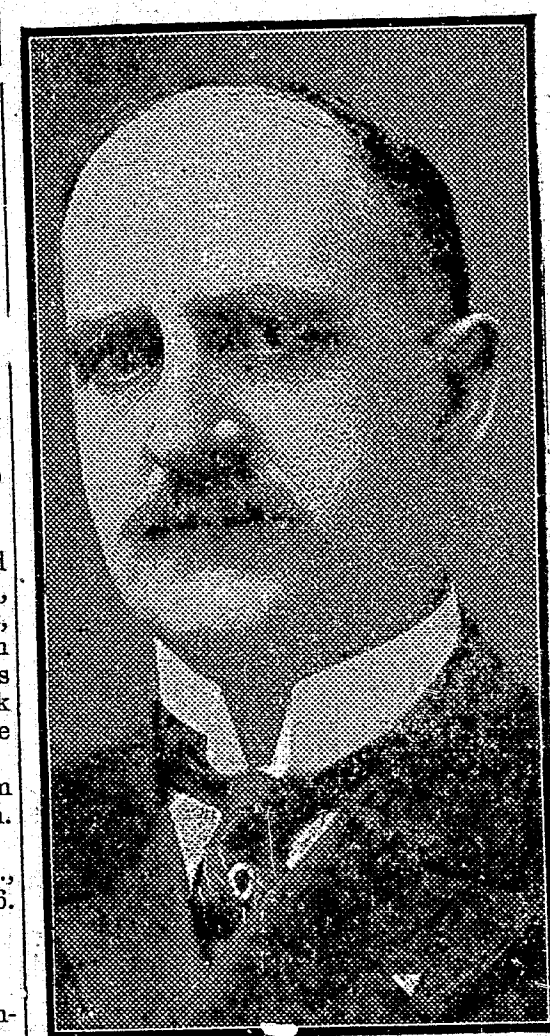

One of the problems that the modern town has to meet is the building of sidewalks fast enough to meet the needs of the community. High cost of labor and material, higher standards of public comfort, make it an expensive proposition. Most towns spread out now in a scattered way, and do not huddle together as they used to. It was comparatively inexpensive to provide walks for the old-fashioned concentrated town, but very costly to build them past all the vacant lots found nowadays in the outskirts of every town.

spending a lot of money for road improvement, and doing little for the great mass of people who walk. The private result in many places is to drive the pedestrian element into the middle of the street where they suffer discomforts of dust, dirt and mud, not to say anything of having to turn out for every vehicle that passes.

The man who demands the finest type of cement walk was pleased as a boy when they ran a tar concrete walk past his house. His father probably thought it a great advance when they laid cinders or gravel paths. However, a town must keep up with the times, and it has to compete with its neighbors.

The great majority of places seem to be laying cement walks. It is costly, but probably pays in the long run, if well laid. Many towns, however, have spent large sums on this construction, but owing to carelessness or dishonesty of contractors, they now see their costly cement showing many broken sections.

It is a town that builds walks to its outskirts with reasonable promptitude, makes itself very attractive to newcomers. Probably every dollar spent that way comes back in the form of more taxable property. A town that anticipates future needs is likely to grow to meet the facilities that it provides.

EDWARD C. PLUMMER

The candidacy of E. C. Plummer for Representative to Congress was enthusiastically endorsed by the Committee in the following resolution:

"We endorse Edward C. Plummer of Bath as the Republican candidate for Congress.

"We endorse him, not because he is a resident of this county, but because his years of experience in Washington, his wide acquaintance and friendly relations with Congressmen, and the way he has demonstrated that he can get things done in Congress, show that he will make an effective representative of all the people in this district; while his recognized power as a campaigner and acts of Congress from his personal knowledge and observation, make him a candidate who will strengthen the whole ticket, one who can meet his Democratic opponent on his own ground and do much to bring victory to the Republicans."

WHY IS A CHURCH?

We ask the question not in a spirit of irrelevancy or indifference toward religion, but through a profound desire to know just why the Divine Creator has decreed that His word shall be expounded in a house set aside for that express purpose—between four walls that are used only at intervals and then for short periods of time. We will be grateful for any brilliant mind that will give us the answer that lies deep beneath the surface, that to us is enshrouded in impenetrable mystery.

Everybody knows we have churches. Some know them intimately, many only from a distance. Some attend the services, others ought to. Some are benefitted by contact, while others are indifferent.

But why, we ask, is a church? Per chance we may have hazy ideas, and may talk learnedly on the benefits of churches and religion—for they are a benefit, a great and lasting benefit.

Religion is the one bright spot in this world of sin and corruption. It is the strong arm that lifts up and keeps us from sinking to the level of the beast. It is the greatest thing in this world of many wonders.

But why the church, the house of four walls that are lighted for house and darkened for days?

We could worship God as devoutly at our own firesides, or in our own places of business, or on the streets, or behind the plow. We could worship Him anywhere if the spirit of worship were there.

The minister could mingle amongst us and by word here and there expound the teachings of the gentle Nazarine. He could speak from the street corners, or from any other vantage point at which crowds assemble. He would reach many people who never see the inside of a church, whose souls are precious though they be housed in the squalor of poverty. And his words would be heard, and heeded, for no matter how steeped in sin we may be, when a real man of God speaks we listen and think—and a few remember.

There is no story so fascinating, so gripping, so lasting, as the one which is as old as man—the story of God's creation of the world and of His efforts to save those of His own creation. But the story may be told wherever the voice can be heard.

We have churches, we need them, for the good that comes from them is a blessing to mankind, is a powerful stimulant to the life of this community.

God never permitted the creation of churches without a reason. There is a reason, many of them, and they are all powerful. But there is one great reason which dwarfs all others, and that is the one reason which we still would like to know. What is it? Who can lift the veil of obscurity and speak with divine authority, speak even as God Himself would have them speak for the enlightenment of the lay mind?

Some may speak, may give us reasons as they are blessed with the light, but the great answer is yet to come, and we would like to hear.

We have the church, and it is good. We believe in it, we endeavor to encourage the good work that springs from it, while we deprecate the work of the men who as wolves in sheep's clothing prostitute its high calling.

But still the question: Why is a church? What is the answer of all answers?

—Waldo Co. Herald.

PRUNE WHIP.

If you are fond of prunes please try this recipe. Take six prunes for a person, wash and stew until very soft. When cool enough to handle cut in fine pieces and stones. Add three-fourths of a cup of sugar and for 18 prunes the whites of two eggs beaten very stiff. Stir in the prunes until well blended and set aside until cold. Serve with whipped cream. It requires no baking and is very good.
